THE ST. ALPHONSUS SOCIETY.

Celebration of its Eighteenth Anniversary

The St. Alphonsus Society celebrated its eighteenth anniversary yesterday with a parade and a picnic at the Park. Mr. P. Bonenberger was Chief Marshal, with W. Schott and John Foose as aides. The Opera House band headed the procession, and the Knights of St. George, cession, and the Knights of St. George, St. Alphonsus Young People's Society, under command of Charles Woeber, and the St. Alphonsus Society, marshaled by John Coleman, Bernard Bach and Adolph Bott, made up the line. The route was as laid down in yesterday's INTELLORNERS. The ten o'clock motor was taken for the Park, and all through the day the people fairly swarmed there. It was one of the largest and most successful picnics ever given in the Park. All devoted themselves exclusively to having a good time, with eminent success. The selebration reflected much credit on the Society.

The Pottery Trust Off,
The East Liverpool Crisis says the Pottery Trust is finally off, and it is now admitted that the project was a scheme of Trenton potters who are very much disturbed over competition from the Ohio Valley. The potteries are now beginning to prepare for the fall trade, and though the proprietors admit that the business is badly demoralized in Trenton, yet they think the outlook for the trade this fall is very oncouraging.

A Wheeling potter said last night that the idea advanced above is all wrong. The Olive Fest of the trade the trustees ghosen for the eastern factories were unacceptable, the project would have been a success. It may be revived again.

TWO SERIOUS ACCIDENTS.

A Man ilint and Another Narrowly Escapes on the Eim Grove Road. There were two accidents on the Eim Grove road last evening, both of which missed resulting fatally. The most serious occurred at the Mt. Calvary Ceme tery. Joseph Bachman, aged about 25, a resident of East Wheeling, had been a resident of East Wheeling, had been spending the aiternoon'st the St. Alphonsus picnic at the Park. He desired to come in on the motor train leaving the eastern terminus at 8 o'clock, and as there was a large crowd waiting to come into town on that train, he started up the National road as far as the Mt. Calvary Cemetery, his idea being to jump aboard the train at that point as it went out and thereby secure a good seat.

aboard the train at that point as it went out and thereby secure a good seat.

As he jumped for the train, which was going at a lively speed, having been detained by the other accident, he missed his footing and his legs swung under the car. One foot struck the rail in front of one of the trucks, and three toes were ground off. In addition, Bachman was thrown violently to the ground and generally bruised and battered up.

ground and generally bruised and battered up.

Those who had witnessed the accident hurried to shis relief, and made him as comfortable as possible on the soft sward in the cemetery. A physician was procured as soon as possible and the young man gotten to his room in this city. He was quite sick at the stomach, and the physician leared that he had sustained serious internal injuries, but the young man had absorbed so much beer that it could not be told for a certainty last evening whether it was simply beer or an internal injury that caused the nausea. One thing is certain, and that is that Bachman had a very narrow escape from death. The other accident, which was first to occur, took place at the Central glass works, as the train leaving here at 6:10 works, as the train leaving here at 6:10 was on its way out. At that point one of the cars of the train jumped the track. The engineer, Paul Shane, got under the car with some blocks, intending to arrange them so that when the train was started up the car would be drawn on the track. In some way the person left in charge of the engine started it forward before the blocks had been fixed or the proper signal given.
